Business Spotlight: Lloyd’s Table Company

When Lloyd A. Steffensmeier, D.C., moved to Mount Vernon, Iowa, in 1960, the small town thought it had gained a chiropractor. Residents soon discovered, however, that Dr. Steffensmeier had ambitions beyond his practice and experience. As a Palmer College student in the mid-50's, he had designed, produced and sold portable tables. So, it wasn't too surprising when, in 1963, he designed and built for himself a knee-chest table he thought to be superior to those on the market because it adapted better to smaller patients. The product caught the interest of many local doctors, and Dr. Steffensmeier's hobby turned into a thriving business.

In 1972, his basement was no longer adequate for the operation. The company was then moved two miles away to a four-story brick building in Lisbon. In this 14,400 sq. ft. facility, the business expanded rapidly, continuing to increase the volume of business.

Still thriving today, Dr. Steffensmeier is proud of his accomplishments and optimistic about the future of his company. His table designs have made the chiropractic adjustment easier, more efficient and faster with less fatigue, while providing unprecedented patient comfort.

As testimony to their complete support of the Chiropractic profession, Lloyd’s Table has a multi-million dollar investment in adjusting tables (at no cost) to Chiropractic Colleges throughout the world. In addition, Lloyd Table Company is a regular contributor to many national, state, and local charities and organizations.

Lloyd’s Table Company is located at 120 W Main Lisbon, Iowa 52253.
